

MARYLAND CENTER FOR HISTORY AND CULTURE

Student Research Center for History Rules

The Maryland Center for History and Culture's Library contains a variety of interesting and irreplaceable sources. These rules are designed to protect our collections so that we can make our resources available to future researchers. Please discuss these rules with your students prior to arriving at the Maryland Center for History and Culture.

- Please remember to use pencil while you are in the Student Research Center for History.
- During your visit, please remember to keep all coats and backpacks in the designated locations. Purses may be kept but placed in the back of the research room.
- We ask that teachers and chaperones please help our staff make sure that the library materials are handled properly by the students.
- Please remind students to speak in a low volume while they are in the library, so that they do not disturb other researchers.
- Please remind students to bring a tablet, loose paper, or notecards to the SeaRCH Center.
- Please remind students that items such as pens, markers, lipstick, chewing gum, food, drinks, etc. are not allowed in the SeaRCH Center.
- Please remind students that primary sources may not be removed from the SeaRCH Center.
- Please remind students that, when citing sources from the Maryland Center for History and Culture they should write the name of the collection, the collection number, and the "Maryland Center for History and Culture" in their bibliography and footnotes.
